

MORNING APPEAL.

Friday.....February 4 1887.

IRISH REJECTED.

The U. S. Senate has rejected the appointment of Irish for Surveyor General. Senators Jones and Fair voted against him on the grounds that he was a non-resident of Nevada. Why Jones should suddenly be struck with the Home Rule spasm is more than anybody can find out. The Mint in this city used to be packed with carpet-baggers from the East, and we never heard of Jones voting against them before. The Journal man has been making a desperate fight to keep his successor from being appointed and Jones and Fair are behind him. Fair is for him because he tried to split the Republican party and failed, but we can see no solid reason why at the present stage of the game Jones does not drop him like a red hot horse shoe. Jones can no longer afford such an alliance.

FORBES' PARTNERSHIP BILL.

The Bill introduced by Senator Forbes, to compel partners to file a record of their partnership ought to pass the Assembly; it has already passed the Senate. Had such a law been on the Statute books a year ago, the Frankel's would not have plundered the Comstock community. When the creditors wanted a settlement the elder Frankel claimed that he was not a partner, although his name had been on the sign for years. Had the public known that he was not a responsible partner, very little trading would have been done with the firm, for they did not consider the other brothers responsible. Forbes' bill will prevent a repetition of such swindles.

CONVICT LABOR.

Maute's bill repealing the law authorizing convict labor was signed by the Governor yesterday. The Democratic platforms abound with molasses for the laboring classes, but the Democrats passed a convict labor bill which the Republicans repealed. After this we hope the Democratic platform will not lay any special claim to being the friend of free labor.

Brigham Young's Resurrection.

The dodge to have a pretended resurrection of old Brigham Young went work. It is on a par with the numerous dodges played by the Mormon Church, but if they bring a man to light resembling Brigham Young, no one but the credulous Mormons will believe it. The writer, while in Salt Lake some years ago, conversed with a lady, a relative of Brigham Young, who had left the Mormon Church after his death. She stated positively that she was in the house when he died. She saw him an hour before his death, and a few minutes after, and assisted in the funeral preparations. She had no doubt of his death, nor has any other intelligent person in Salt Lake.

A Soft Answer.

"What in h— do you call this?" demanded a Carson man as he slammed down a sack of damaged California Family XXX.

"Only a little faded flour," replied the grocer with a smile, and the altercation was at once avoided.

—The utterance of the London Standard with regard to some recent Irish evictions is a remarkable one, coming as it does from the leading Troy organ of Great Britain, and may well make the landlords uneasy. It declares that these cases bring shame and discredit on the whole body of landlords in Ireland, and that such landlords have no right to be supplied by the Government with the means for enforcing decrees granted them by the strict process of the law. It says that some of this Winter's evictions have been inhuman spectacles, fit only for a barbarous country and a barbarous age. It also expresses the belief that the Government may well consider whether it is not time to separate the action of the Irish executive from the enforcement of such decrees.

—Spies, the anarchist, was married to Miss Van Zant in Chicago, his brother Henry acting as proxy. How long the brother will continue the proxy system is not stated.
